Robust financial management is a critical success factor for today's organizations. CFOs and controllers need tools to enable them to master their financial data, integrate operational processes and take full advantage of the financial information their system contains.

With instant access to accurate, up-to-the-minute financial information, finance and accounting managers are equipped to make informed operational and strategic decisions at a moment's notice.

In this informative seminar we will discuss how to:

Keep your focus on mission critical issues — Minimize time spent on routine accounting tasks through automation of transactions in general ledger, accounts payable, accounts receivable and other financial modules.

Improve cash management processes — Manage your expenses more effectively with better vendor information, payment scheduling and up-to-the minute cash flow status information. Maintain tight control over receivables with capabilities that help you better track invoices, process receipts, and analyze customer activity.

Count on one version of the truth at all times— Achieve integration with various operational systems to improve efficiency and accuracy, and to reduce costs.

Make better decisions — Integrate productivity tools such as MS-Excel with your accounting information systems to build budgeting, forecasting, and analysis models in support of your decision-making needs.

Translate strategic objectives to operational results — Develop easy-to-use performance management scorecards linking your organization's strategic goals with daily operational results. Enable everyone to better understand strategic goals and stay focused on contributing to the organization's overall success.
