TYRONE, PA - Ben Franklin Technology Partners of Central and Northern Pennsylvania, part of a statewide network that promotes technology-based innovation, job opportunities, and economic growth recently appointed Angie Singer-Keating to its Board of Directors. Ms. Keating is a co-founder and majority shareholder in Reclamere Inc., a security-focused, IT asset management company and a past recipient of Ben Franklin funding. In her role as Vice President of Security and Compliance for Reclamere, Keating is responsible for all security, legal and regulatory compliance aspects of the business.

Steve Brawley, President/CEO of Ben Franklin commented, “We are very pleased that Angie agreed to accept this open position on our Board. Her experience with Ben Franklin as a past funding recipient, as well as her knowledge of IT companies in general, makes her an invaluable asset to our program as we move forward.”

As a community advocate, Ms. Keating is a member of the Board of Directors for the Blair County Chapter of Pennsylvania Cleanways, co-chairperson for the Blair Chamber Technology Committee, and chairperson for the Blair County Employer Advisory Council. A graduate of the Pennsylvania State University with a degree in Electrical Engineering, Keating resides with her husband and son in Altoona, Pennsylvania.
