

Ready, Set, Solve!

The first-ever Philadelphia Inquirer National Sudoku Championship is coming to Philadelphia on October 20 and will be hosted by Will Shortz, renowned puzzle master and star of the 2006 hit documentary Wordplay. A new Corporate Division has recently been added to the Championship so that companies can participate as a team and join in on the fun.

Corporate teams of four or more can register at www.philly.com/sudoku.

The winning team will receive some exciting prizes and all corporate teams will be listed in an ad in The Philadelphia Inquirer following the Championship.

The Philadelphia Inquirer National Sudoku Tournament takes place from 11 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday, October 20.

Team registration also includes Friday night kick-off reception at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts and Championship Meal and Celebration after the tournament on Saturday at the Pennsylvania Convention Center. For more information, visit www.philly.com/sudoku.